

Notice about possible fraudulent job postings

Many Financial Services organisations across the world have recently been the target of fraudulent job posting schemes where individuals represent themselves as recruiters and solicit candidates for employment via social media.

Invesco Australia does not post job advertisements on LinkedIn, or any social media platform, under our company name.

Invesco Australia does not ask for payment at any time during our employment process. We recommend that you do not disclose your personal or financial information to anyone you do not know.

If you believe you have been a victim of recruiting fraud, you can click the link below to submit a report to Invesco's Services, Technology and Security Team.
